

YEARBOOK & COMMUNICATIONS CONTENTS

Vol. XXI, No. 7-8, July-August, 2001

Loyola de Palacio

Editorial

European Union striving to renew the quality of public information. By Loyola de Palacio 6

ENS Annual Report 8

ENS 2000: president's report	8
Treasurer's report	12
Accounts	13
Committee chairs. Secretariat	15
Governing bodies	16
Member societies. Stamp collectors	17
Young Generation Network	19

World Nuclear Status Report 21

Uranium Production in 2000 46

ENS News

Stritar new ENS president. Topfuel draws the crowds. General assembly rings changes. NucNet's energetic start. Awards. 48

Andrej Stritar

Corporate Members News

Jeffrey is new BE chief. Major milestone for BNFL. Nukem in Chinese deal. Studsvik aim for change. 51

World News

Europe Scandinavians' cooperate on radwaste. Franco-US Generation IV agreement. Italy to reconsider nuclear policy. Ignalina safety on schedule. 53

Asia and America Tepco in MOX loading plan. Taiwan referendum. Excelon in license renewals. US confirms new NPP plans. 54

UK focus David Fishlock reports on plans to expand UK nuclear industry. 55

Features

Increasing European networking around High Temperature Reactors (HTR) By Joël Guidez 57

Modernization of WERs: Lessons learned by western partners By Franz Hilbert 58

Nuclear safety in Slovenia – the world's smallest nuclear state By Marko Cepin 60

Members of the Young Generation Network

All the above articles are now available online as Adobe pdf files at the website of the European Nuclear Society (ENS) <http://www.euronuclear.org/new/features>.

Jobs 50

Readers Service 62

The next issue

Globalization

On the cover: For three decades, CAE has been serving the nuclear industry with its advanced simulator solutions. Today, CAE is the world's leading supplier of a complete range of simulation equipment and services, from user-friendly simulation tools, full-scale NPP simulators through to life-cycle support services. Contact CAE at powersims@cae.com for more information.

Photo credit for cover of issue 3-4/2001: Richard Ryan.